

Calling all scratch builders!

Have you been looking for plans of a particular aircraft that doesn't seem to be available?

Can you take photos of your building progress and have a friend who can take good photos of your creation in the air?

How would it be if someone said to you 'I am willing to design the model for you for free and hopefully get your model published as a joint venture... AND pass on to you half the publication fee to cover much of the cost of building... AND you get to keep your model and fly it to your heart's content!

Those of you who know me, know that I have more than 30 published models under my belt and my designs use economic electric power systems in light airframes that can emulate the full-size, not only in looks but also in flying speed.

You may also know my preference for little known – or perhaps lesser known types that haven't already been done to death. I enjoy a good mechanical challenge too – so I will also try to design a cheap and easy to build practical retract system if one is called for – all for free.

I will of course take 50% of the publication fee as my design/drawing fee, but pass the other 50% on to you as the builder's fee.

Fair? I hope you will think so!

If you would like to take advantage of this offer get in touch with our trusty webmaster who will pass your details on to me.

Happy Modelling,

Robin Fowler
